We're T3D (the people in charge here at work) we're happy to announce in this special week the beta version of the official Android version of MeeGo 1.2 OS, a mobile operating system based on the Qt project for mobile devices. We believe that this operating system will be a very big step for our project, it will be a good way to promote our project and ultimately open the doors for many different implementations of our mobile OS. On the MeeGo web site we will be sharing more and more details about this project, in fact we're planning to do a blog with the news and updates about the project itself and share what is new on the project on a regular basis. We wish all the best to those interested and will have news for you as always. RelatedStability of Transitions of Carbohydrates in Non-polar Solvents. The photostability of the enediol isomerization in aqueous trifluoroacetic acid (TFA) is a critical step for the solar hydrogen production based on 3-formyl-1,2-propanediol (synthesis of glycolaldehyde and trioxalenol). Herein, we have investigated the stability of glycolaldehyde isomerization into trioxalenol in non-polar solvents (cyclohexane, heptane, hexane, toluene, and 2,2,4-trimethyl-1,3-pentane). The importance of reaction additives, such as (1) alcohols (2-propanol, 1-butanol, 2-ethylhexanol, 2-butanol, 2-ethylhexanol, cyclohexanol), (2) other cyclic ethers (1,3-dioxolane and 1,3-dioxane), (3) tertiary amines (dimethyl amine, triethylamine, 1-benzyl-3-methylimidazolium iodide), (4) amines with various polarities (tert-butyl amine, 2-phenyl-2-oxazoline, 1-methyl-2

Q: Django Model.save(commit=False) is throwing when I have a null in a Foreign Key I have a static method in my project that has a null Foreign key in it but i am receiving this error. When I specify MyModel.objects.get(pk=20), I get the proper data without any issue. When I do try to use.save(commit=False) with this I get the error when I use the nested custom field in my static method. #Static method where I am able to use get but when I try to use save, I receive the error MyModel.objects.filter(pk=20).exists() AttributeError at /CustomFieldName/ 'str' object has no attribute 'exists' Process finished with exit code 1 How would I be able to fix this issue? A: for me, this is a model.exists() issue. i'm assuming you're testing the error on your template? if the null field doesn't exist, it will evaluate to False, and hence the error. However, if it does exist (which is to say, it's not null) the value will evaluate to True, and you should be ok. -ban Q: Using Blenders Instanced Gameobject to change an array I am trying to make a basic game. I want the player to be able to select one of two blocks and push it in front of their position(in the Y-Axis) and then their block would explode. What I am trying to do is to copy the array using blenders array modifier, using the instance as an offset so that it changes the amount of blocks that have the player on top. I have gone through numerous postings about this but I cant seem to make it work, I am getting totally lost on the concept of where to start, can someone give me the right direction? Thank you, A: 1) Make an array of cubes. Here I've simply duplicated one of the cubes onto 6 more. 2) Apply the Array Modifier. Select the cube that will be the "first" block. 3) Enter Edit Mode (press i) and select all the individual cubes in the object's active armature. 4) Apply a Forward modifier. In this case
